

Miss Calhoun of Zanesville, is visiting at Dr. Pullen's.

Mr Jacob Weaver attended the wedding of his sister in Lancaster on Tuesday.

Mrs Lewis Green and family are visiting in Muskingum county this week.

Attention is called to the Card of Dr Ramey. He is a first class Dentist and merits a liberal patronage.

Mrs Mary Shay, one of the most efficient attendants at the Athens Asylum, visited friends in Logan this week.

Mrs John Shunk of Carbon Hill, has the thanks of the Sentinel for a basket of Strawberries, the most delicious we have seen this season.

Messrs. Hanly, Wetherburn, Cox and Nixon, of Straitsville, visited Logan on last Saturday, and made a pleasant call at the Sentinel office.

Mrs. Dr. Tiggart, Mrs. L. J. Jackson and Mrs. Andy and Joseph Ward, of New Lexington, attended School Commencement on last Friday evening, and were much pleased with the exercises.

The McArthur Enquirer has recently been enlarged, and is giving evidence of being one of the most prosperous papers in the State. The Enquirer is a sound Democratic paper and we are glad to see it appreciated by the Democrats of Vinton.

The Bounding Baird senting the battle from afar off in Perry. Rushed into the Post-office tomorrow night, last week, a plumed knight, as it were. The traitors of the Republican party tremble at the Prussian strongholds. Oh, or a Snyder! One more letter from him would paralyze the whole business.

Col Lyman J. Jackson, of New Lexington, attended our School Commencement on last Friday evening, and was surprised and delighted with the evidences of high culture on the part of the graduates. The Colonel is a scholar, and his testimonial in behalf of our School is a compliment to be proud of.

The Gallipoli Bulletin pays the following well deserved compliments to the address of our townsman, Capt. S. H. Bright, delivered on Decoration Day, in that place:

S. H. Bright, of Logan, was the orator of the day. Without ostentation or any attempt at display or eloquence, he touched the hearts of all with his plain, simple, unvarnished narration of facts and incidents of the war that were of pleasant and gracious memory.

Our Little Ones.

The June number of "Our Little Ones," a model child's magazine, is the handsomest publication of its kind we have seen this season. The illustrations are master-pieces of art, and the articles unexceptionable in style and matter. Send for a copy to Russell Publishing Co., Boston.

Decoration Day.

Decoration Day was properly observed by the citizens of Logan.

The following programme was carried out.

Master-of-ceremonies, Lloyd Wiers.

The order of the procession of exercises was as follows:

Procession formed on Main St., resting on Market; deployment eastward at 130 o'clock p.m.

The following order: Mayor and City Officials, Union School Board, Public Schools, Sabbath Schools and Choir, Decorating Committee, Maria' Band, Knights of Pythias, Sons of Veterans, Ex-Soldiers and Sailors, Visiting Comrades, Jas. K. Foster Post, G. A. R., and citizens.

Line of march, north on Market street to cemetery.

Exercises at cemetery; decorating graves; decorating hymn choir; Memorial services—office of Post; Memorial Address, Col. S. Weldy; Hymn, America—Choir and Comrades; Benediction.

The Grand Army Ritual recited was somewhat tedious, and interesting to the large crowd of citizens in attendance.

The little girls with baskets of flowers who decorated the graves were under the direction of Mrs. George Heft. The little boys carrying flags were directed by I. Wolf.

Col. Weldy's address was mainly directed to the rising generation, suggestive of patriotic sentiments, and the determination to be right and fight for right. The address was well received and highly complimentary.

The exercises closed by a hymn in the choir, which was well rendered.

Rochester & Son's are receiving a large stock of New goods. Call and see them.

School Commencement
The 12th Annual Commencement of the Logan High School took place at Rempel's Opera House on Friday evening, May 10th, 1884.
It was a very pleasant evening, and long before the doors were opened, the people thronged the streets and Opera House, anxious to obtain admission and procure suitable seats.
At eight o'clock, the hour for beginning the exercises, the hall was so crowded that there was no standing room and many were turned away at the door.
The managers of the exercises prudently taken the precaution to reserve upwards of 100 seats for the parents and friends of the graduates.
After the class had all arrived and the members of the Board of Superintendents had taken their seats on the stage, Superintendent McCravelled the house to order, and after a few prefatory remarks, he announced the programme.
Rev. G. W. Burns pronounced a devotional and appropriate invocation.
Will H. Gould then opened the exercises proper with an oration, "The Dangers to the Republic."
Will spoke for eleven minutes. He discussed the dangers to the Republic from within and without, and held the audience by his argument and forcible arguments, smoothness and eloquence of speech. His voice was clear and his speech pleased the audience.
Mary Clark was next announced for an essay, "A Philanthropist's Mission."
May read for eight minutes. She took her pilgrim through all the walks of life in search of immortal truth. May's essay abounded in poetical thoughts pressed in the choicest words. Her essay had been better appreciated had it been read louder.
Jessie Bishop then followed with an oration on "Hidden Treasures." She searched for the missing link in the broad field of science. The oration was interesting and instructive. Jessie linked more of the missing links in five minutes than many scientists have discovered in a lifetime.
Kate Weitzell followed with an essay on the "Social Firmament."
She showed us how (if we wished to see and understand the universal society) we must not only have the best telescope but the most varied and favorable observatory. The suns and stars of their magnitude, the planets and their satellites, the comets and nebulae, with here and there a shower of meteors will then all be seen as distinctly as the variable bodies of the solar system seen through a Lord Ross's telescope. In nine minutes the whole firmament of society was before us, and the distance, their position and light accurately measured.
There was now some music and during this time the floral tributes were collected.
Then followed the debate, moderated by "That classics should be excluded from High School and college courses."
This was an interesting question, and one of the chief problems in education, and every one entered into the spirit of the discussion.
John M. White opened the affirmative; a speech of ten minutes in length. The chief argument presented was the vast amount of time expended on these studies.
John also spoke of the impracticability of the classics and the uselessness in the ordinary education of life.
The negative was then beautifully and ably argued by Mollie Stride. Though Mollie's speech not come into direct opposition to John White's, yet she produced many able arguments in favor of the classics, and closed with a beautiful compliment to ancient authors. Mollie dismissed the chief essential of the successful debater, namely, coolness and self possession.
John A. Smith gave the closing sentiment of the affirmative.
It is noted for his aversion to classics and was very enthusiastic in his speech. John was earnest and adhered strictly to the practical disadvantages these studies.
Emma K. Frasch closed the session with a well delivered speech of some power and somewhat independent of the affirmatives. Emma has a love for the classics and is not afraid to say it. Her arguments were clear and convincing, expressed in good language, and her elocution was of high order.
The boys again gathered floral gifts, and the orchestra dismissed a spirited waltz.
Emma McCarthy was then announced for an oration on the theme of "Conformity."
Emma had concentrated her efforts for voice for the occasion and surprised the house. Everything taken into consideration, she held the audience as by a charm and charmed them with the beauties and poetry of nature.

Alma's production was deservedly one of the compliments which received from the audience.

A new feature of Logan Commencements and a very commendable one, was the recitation of "Dr. Faustus," by Harry S. Howell. Harry had studied the piece thoroughly and won the admiration of the people. The recitation was a real treat.

The Poem, "The Merman's Compliment," by Mary Isaminger, was an interesting and entertaining review of the late struggle of the Hooking Canal for existence. Mary said many pretentious things but did not say them long enough.

The strength of the class was reserved for the end.

People were growing impatient to hear Mert Smith's oration, "The Royal Purple of Manhood."

Too much can not be said of Mert's oration. Mert himself made many qualities of the real orator. The orchestra once more entertained the audience, the boys gathered the flowers and the girls. Rathmel gave the class address, every sentence of which bespoke the learning of the chief instructor. His oratory was almost faultless, and he was fully appreciated by the intelligent audience. A finer and more practical talk never was given to Logan audience.

Mr. Bright, the President of the Board, then presented the Diplomas in a short but appropriate title talk.

The Benediction was given by Rev. C. C. Hart, and the programme was finished.

The seats on the stage were occupied by the Ministers, the Superintendent, Mr. Rathmel, the principal, Miss Saumgenic, the assistant, who influence has been silently left for good for years past, the board of education, and the class.

The stage was handsomely enough not lavishly decorated. The class motto, "For Honored or an Honored Close" was tastefully arranged on the drop curtain of the stage.

We shall not attempt to describe the dresses. Suffice to say the girls were all handsomely and sensibly dressed.

The floral tributes were numerous, beautiful and costly, and showed the esteem in which the class are held by their friends.

The music was classical, was performed in good style and was very judiciously distributed throughout the programme.

The whole affair reflects the highest credit on the management and teachers of the school and the industry of the class.

The verdict of our people is in the present management of our schools.

— Cheap Excursion to Athens. —

On Tuesday, June 10th, the Columbus, Rocking Valley & Cleveland Ry. will run a Cheap Excursion to Athens, for the accommodation of those desiring to attend the 14th District Congressional Convention. The rates are so low that everybody will have an opportunity to go to the convention.

— Excursion train leaves Logan at 8:10 A. M. Round trip rates only 80 cents. Judge Forker, a candidate for Governor, and other prominent men will speak at Athens on above date. There will be Bands of Music, Street processions and a good lively one is expected.

— Remember the date, Tuesday, June 10th, and that the arrangement of trains give about eight hours in Athens, and also get home at a seasonable hour.

— These Hats. —

The beautiful and fashionable hats now worn by our able staff for the edification of the people and to the envy of the hostile zette, are from Charley Seay's Store, the gift of Clay Fink.

Two years ago Clay measured political judgment on the action of Converse in a bet with our prophet, the Parson.

The bet was marked down in black letters on the white walls the press room, in each one and write."

Clay missed his guess and lost the bet by four thousand.

Last Saturday he was in the city recognizing the record, presented the staff with the beautiful hats they now wear, also exclaiming us to proceed with householding and white washing over the horrid figures standing on the wall and staring at us for many years.

Clay has our thanks for the timely compliment. We shall return the Hats to Tilden's inauguration, or get one as good as his him to wear when he goes to the man of his choice installed the White House.

Judge Friesner has been visiting ours and relatives in Bucyrus a week.

The Commissioners are holding regular session this week.

Miss Kate Butts of Nelsonville, visiting her cousin, Mrs. Owens in this city.

Advertising Cheats!!!

"It has become so common write the beginning of an advertisement in an elegant, interesting manner.
Then run into some advertisement that we avoid all such,
And simply call attention to the merits of Hop Bitters as the most honest terms as possible,
To induce people
To give them one trial; who so proves their value that they will never use anything else."
THE REMEDY SO FAVORABLY
TESTED IN ALL THE PAPERS,
Religious and secular, is:
Having a large sale, and supplying all other medicines.
There is no denying the virtue of Hop plant, and the properties of Hop Bitters have shown great effectiveness.
And ability
In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable every one's observation."

DID SHE DIE?

"No!
She lingered and suffered alone pining away all the time for fear of the doctors doing her no good." And at last cured by this HOP BITTERS the papers say so abundantly.
Indeed! Indeed!
How thankful we should be that medicine."

A DAUGHTER'S MISERY.

"Eleven years our daughter suffered from a bed of misery,
From complication of kindred liver, rheumatic trouble and Nervous debility,
Under the care of the best physicians,
Who gave her disease various names,
But no relief,
And now she is restored to perfect health by a simple remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had shined for years before using it."

THE PARENTS.

FATHER IS GETTING WELL.

"My daughters say:
How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters." He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable.
And we are so glad that he uses your Bitters."
